

ABSTRACT

A web page for updating entries in a database is disclosed. In a preferred embodiment, a web page is disclosed for entering information received from a user into a database managed by the web site. The web site may be configured to associate the entered information with a database, present to the user a confirmation web page including an update icon for updating the database, and update the database with the information responsive to a received user click on the update icon.